Maxthon browser is one of the popular web browsers available for both Windows and Mac devices, thanks to its fast speed and its great features. Q: Why are the U.S. and UK using the same currency? Why are the US and UK using the same currency? Is it a practical issue, or is there some deeper reason why they use the same currency? Wikipedia says, On 1 January 1971, the then UK united with Ireland and four UK territories: the Channel Islands, Gibraltar, the Isle of Man and the United Kingdom, as well as several European and Caribbean dependencies, to form the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. If this is the reason then I am confused. Wikipedia says that both the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland are in the UK and both the Republic of Ireland and the US are in the U.S., so what then are the UK and the Republic of Ireland?

A: The UK and the US inherited their currency from the UK pound sterling and the US dollar respectively. As a result, there are two different currencies in the UK, with different governments controlling them. Also as a result of the UK also inheriting the Queen of England's right to designate their head of state, the United Kingdom is also involved in the sovereignty over Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and Japan. A: There are two reasons: Stability. If you lived in the US, but your money was invested abroad in a British company you wouldn't be very happy about a massive devaluation of your savings. Confidence. A lot of investors, especially during the global financial crisis of the late 2000s, trust the British pound. If you are one of these people, you wouldn't be happy about a financial crisis in a British-backed currency. A: Currency Union You are right in pointing out that the UK joined the US in many areas. These areas are called United States of Great Britain. For example, the Queen of England is still the Monarch of the United Kingdom, but she is also the Queen of the United States of Great Britain. She is also the sovereign head of state over the UK, the Isle of Man, the Falkland Islands, Bermuda, the Channel Islands, and Gibraltar. To quote Wikipedia: The United Kingdom (...) enjoys the right to opt-out of EU
